Does the job, with all it entails, make sense? Is it feasible? Is it one that well trained, interested, special education professionals can manage in order to accomplish their main objective—enhancing students’ academic, social, and vocational competence?

Gersten et al., 2001, p. 551
SUMMARY OF SPECIAL EDUCATION TURNOVER FINDINGS

• Younger and inexperienced special educators are more likely to leave

• District and school working conditions, work assignment factors, contribute to leaving (e.g., salary, climate, support, role demands)

• Personal factors account for about 1/3 of leaving decision

• Uncertified/less well-prepared teachers are more likely to leave
3. NEED FOR RESEARCH—CHARACTERISTICS AND PREPARATION

- Information teacher characteristics and qualifications and staying and leaving
- Effects of varied types of preparation on turnover
  - Alternative route vs. traditional
  - Dual certification vs. special education certification
  - Categorical vs. multicategorical preparation
3. NEED FOR RESEARCH: WORK CONDITIONS (cont.)

- Search and hiring processes and turnover.
- Impact of current policy context on teachers' roles, perspectives, and turnover.
- Longitudinal studies of teachers from preservice to leaving:
  - In-depth descriptions of special educators, their work lives, and challenges they encounter.
4. INCREASING THE ATTRACTIVENESS OF SPECIAL EDUCATION TEACHING

• Raise salaries/benefits
• Improve work conditions
• Promote personal satisfaction
• Create career advancement opportunities
Keeping good teachers should be one of the most important agenda items for any school leader.

Darling-Hammond, 2003, p. 6
